AAS DEGREE - CODE #0647

Danielle Green, Program Coordinator Email address: greendr@alfredstate.edu

This program, approved by the National Court Reporters Association, will prepare you for a career in various court reporting fields—from official to freelance to realtime and closed captioning for the hearing impaired.

ATTRIBUTES

- Independence
- Great lifestyle
- Prestige
- Flexibility
- Mobility
- Exciting work environments

ADVANTAGES

- Development of high-speed recording skills to 225-plus words per minute through the use of realtime translation machine shorthand and computer aided transcription (CAT).
- In the first year, students learn realtime shorthand theory and develop computer skills that will enhance their overall employability.
- Development of skills in recording and transcribing specialized court reporting matter starts in the summer term and continues through the second year.
- The college offers court reporting courses online, making it possible for students who transfer in credit or attend other colleges to earn their degree from Alfred State in court and realtime reporting. This approach is perfect for working professionals, adult and returning students, and anyone who needs high flexibility in their academic schedule.

DIRECT ENTRY INTO BACCALAUREATE DEGREE PROGRAM

Alfred State court and realtime reporting AAS graduates may enter directly into either the interdisciplinary studies BTech or technology management BBA degree program at Alfred State.

Be advised that a prior felony conviction may impede a student's ability to participate in an internship and complete the program.

ADDITIONAL PROGRAM INFORMATION

- The internship course (CTRP 4602) is completed off campus.
- All students are required to take CTRP 3163 in the summer.
- Students are permitted to repeat a court reporting writing class (Theory I-IV & Speed Building I-V) two times only. If a student is unsuccessful in the same court reporting writing class three times, they will be unable to progress in the court reporting program.
- Students may submit a written appeal to the department, but if not approved, they will be unable to continue in the program.
- Students returning to Alfred State after a substantial break (six months or longer) or transferring from another school may be required to take a placement test to determine coursework at the discretion of the program.

GRADUATION REQUIREMENTS

- A cumulative overall index of at least 2.0 is required in order to graduate.
- All CTRP skill writing classes must be taken and passed at Alfred State with a passing grade of "C-" or better.
- Court reporting students must also meet all the NCRA requirements as stated in the course objectives, including the passing of three, five-minute tests on unfamiliar matter with 95 percent accuracy on two-voice material at 225 wpm, jury charge material at 200 wpm, and literary material at 180 wpm; the completion of 40 verified hours of internship experience, including the production of a 40-page transcript; the transcription of a simulated RPR skills test at RPR speed levels in three hours; and the production of accurate transcripts using computer-aided technology as stated in the course outlines.
